

What You Need to Know about Copyrights

What They Are

All the products published by Regular Baptist Press—Sunday School, take-home papers, Vacation Bible School, books, tracts—are protected by copyright. Regular Baptist Press has registered each product with the United States Copyright Office. This means that only the copyright holder—in this case, Regular Baptist Press—has the right to copy the material.

Every product bears the copyright mark © to indicate to the buyer and user that the material is protected.

What This Means to You

As a result of copyright protection, it is illegal for you to copy material in ANY way. This means you cannot use your church copy machine to run off student materials or to copy parts of a book to distribute. Yes, copyright protection extends to copy machines, as well as any electronic retrieval systems (such as microfilm), duplicating machines, and printing presses. The method of copying does not matter. It is the act of copying that is illegal.

What You May Do

- You may reproduce items that clearly indicate they may be copied; e.g. handwork and craft patterns and verse visuals.
- You may write an outline or draw a sketch from an instructor manual on the chalkboard, a poster, or a transparency.
- In class, you may play the videos from the DVD included in your purchased Teacher Kit.

What You Must Do

You must abide by the copyright law. Notice that it is a law enacted by the United States Government. You help us provide top quality, reasonably priced materials when you refrain from copying.
